

Alameda County Behavioral Health and Office of Ethnic Services presents:

The Cultural Toolbox: An Indigenous Perspective on Deep Healing November 18, 2021 10:30 am—12:30 pm

Description: The Cultural Toolbox: An Indigenous Perspective on Deep Healing will be taking a deep dive into community-defined healing practices and strategies for mental health and addiction recovery. This session is a follow-up to one conducted in 2020 and designed to deepen knowledge and its practical application. Anton Treuer is Ojibwe, from the Leech Lake Reservation in northern Minnesota. His service as a spiritual leader in Native spaces has equipped him with an authentic perspective on the most important work of our time and our individual and collective quest for healing. This session thus addresses directly the National CLAS Standards “Principal Standard 1: ‘Provide effective, equitable, understandable, and respectful quality care and services that are responsive to diverse cultural health beliefs and practices, preferred languages, health literacy, and other communication needs.’”

Learning Objectives:

- By the end of the training, participants will be able to identify 3 community-defined healing practices used today by the Indigenous population of Alameda County to address “Historical Trauma”.
- By the end of the training, participants will be able to identify 3 primary components of racial identity (color, culture, consciousness).
- By the end of the training, participants will be able to list 3 distinct health concerns that Native American nations in California list as top priorities for redress.
