

What Happened to You? Trauma-Informed and Culturally-Responsive Practices in Working with BIPOC Clients

Friday, March 18th, 2022
10:30 AM – 12:30 PM (PT)

3hrs CE; 2hrs Live Training and 1hr of REQUIRED pre-reading

Training Summary and Educational Goals:

This training aims to deepen the participants' understanding of the needs and cultural context of behavioral health clients who identify as Black, Indigenous, and People of Color (BIPOC), within a trauma-informed lens. Best practice guidelines for cultural adaptation when working with BIPOC clients using a combination of top-down and bottom-up frameworks will be discussed. This workshop addresses the National CLAS Standards' "Principal Standard 1: Provide effective, equitable, understandable, and respectful quality care and responsive to diverse cultural health beliefs and practices, preferred languages, health literacy, and other communication needs.

Ritchie J. Rubio, Ph.D., is Director of Practice Improvement and Analytics, San Francisco Department of Public Health - Behavioral Health Services, and adjunct faculty at the Wright Institute. Dr. Rubio has worked as a clinical child psychologist, program evaluator, and associate professor/lecturer in a variety of clinical and academic settings including public health systems, universities, pediatric hospitals, community mental health settings, schools, and research institutes in the Philippines, US, and New Zealand.
